Food and Drug Administration Rockville MD 20857 Dennis Brydges Executive Officer Food and Agriculture Organization 1001 22nd Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20437 Dear Mr. Bridges: On behalf of the Food and Drug Administration, I am pleased to acknowledge your invitation to Mr. Sidney H. Rogers, Director, Investigation Branch to review the Food and Agriculture Organizations National Export Certification Program and its application in the field of export practices. The travel will take place in Rome, Italy from July 10-27, 2002. In accordance with your letter of May 12, 2002, we understand that your organization will reimburse the costs for air fare, lodging, meals, and miscellaneous expenses. When Mr. Rogers has returned and presented his claim, you will be notified by our Accounting Receivable Branch of the amount to be reimbursed. Checks are to be made payable to the Food and Drug Administration. Enclosed for your reference is some general information on guidelines for FDA employees who speak or participate in outside seminars and conferences. Sincerely, Malcolm Frazier Director, Office of Resource Management EnclosureFMD 13 Distribution: Regional Food and Drug Directors and District Directors FDA Headquarters Offices Issued by: ORA/ORO/Division of Field Investigations (HFC-130) Publication Date: November 2002 Piano piece by Paul de Senneville "Mariage d'amour"Song by Richard Claydermanfrom the album Lettre à Ma MèrePublished1979 (1979)Released1979Length2:41[1] [Richard Clayderman's version]4:23 [George Davidson's version]Composer(s)Paul de Senneville Mariage d'amour (Marriage of Love) is a piece of French solo piano music, composed by Paul de Senneville in 1979, and first performed by the pianist Richard Clayderman from his album Lettre À Ma Mère in 1979.[2] Later, pianist George Davidson performed this piece of music from his album My Heart Will Go On with a slightly different version.[3] This version is sometimes erroneously attributed to Frédéric Chopin as "Spring Waltz" because of an upload on YouTube with the wrong title, which reached over 34 million views before being removed.[4][5] As of August 2021, several new copies with that erroneous title are available on YouTube, and one of them has reached over 130 million views.[6] Composition The piece was written in the key of G minor. Having a tempo of around 72 bpm, the time signature changes several times, starting in 4/4, then moving on to 5/4 and 3/4, and then back to 4/4. It has a chord progression of Gm–Cm–F–B♭–D. The Fed has existed for over 100 years with a mission to keep America's economy and financial system as stable as possible.One aspect of this is making sure financial institutions have enough money on hand to keep the economy moving. When you deposit money with the bank, your cash doesn't just sit there waiting for you to take it out again -- the bank or credit union puts it to use, for example by loaning it out. That's one way financial institutions make money, which they can then use to pay interest on your savings deposit.But what would happen if lots of people tried to withdraw their money at once? The banks wouldn't be able to pay. And it would quickly get out of hand -- if word got around that people couldn't withdraw their money, there'd be hordes of people at the doors of every financial institution clamoring for their funds.That's called a "run on banks," and it's exactly the type of thing the Federal Reserve wants to prevent. One of the ways it does this is to require that banks keep a certain amount of money in reserve. And it helps banks to maintain those reserves by limiting the number of savings withdrawals customers can make. Regulation D basically makes it difficult for that angry mob to instantly withdraw all their savings.Limiting Regulation D transactions won't stop you from accessing your money, but it will make it more inconvenient. It's a bit like the difference between shopping on a website where you've already saved your card details, and physically going to a store and standing in a long queue. You might still do the latter, but you're likely to do it less because it will take more effort.What is a "convenient" transaction?All of this begs the question, what is a "convenient" transaction? Well, Regulation D limits any easy way you can move money around, including:Automatic transfers, including overdraft paymentsOther convenient transfers such as a telephone transfer or electronic oneTransactions made via online banking or mobile banking appsPayments by debit card or checkThe penalties for making more than six transactions will differ from bank to bank. Some may charge you a per-transaction fee, and others might close your account or turn it into a checking account. And your savings account may not even offer some of these features, such as a debit card or check-writing capability. Either way, it makes sense to try to stay within the Regulation D limit.What is an "inconvenient" transaction? Regulation D does not restrict the number of "inconvenient" transactions you can make, although you should also check to see if your bank has specific rules for your account. Inconvenient transactions include:ATM transactionsIn-person transactions at the bank or credit unionCalling the bank and having it mail a checkThere are several ways you can avoid penalties for going over the Regulation D transaction limit. The simplest is to always use your checking account for your everyday banking. If necessary, make one larger transfer between your savings and checking account to cover your costs. Plan out how much money you might need each month, and organize your transfers accordingly.If you've set up overdraft protection by linking your savings account to your checking account, be careful -- these automated transfers count as convenient transactions.If you're pushing your transaction limit, visit the bank or ATM and make your withdrawal or transfer directly. Regulation D notwithstanding, it's good practice to avoid making lots of withdrawals from your savings account -- after all, the whole point is to use it for the money you want to save.
